EDN 384: Creating Preschool Environments

Welcome to EDN 384: Creating Preschool Environments. My name is Hengameh Kermani and I am the instructor for this course. This course is designed to prepare individuals who are currently teaching at the preschool level, but do not hold Birth-Kindergarten licensure, to create developmentally appropriate preschool environments and adapt their skills for the preschool classroom. Emphasis is placed on creating or adapting interpersonal and physical environments to facilitate development in all domains and meet individual needs. Strategies for developing collaborative relationships with families will also be explored. Activities include lectures, discussion, demonstrations, individual and group presentations, and laboratory assignments completed in the teacher's own classroom.
